THE TWO HEROES.

CHAPTER I.

'Isn't that fellow at your house rather prosy ?' asked one young bank clerk of another as they sallied off together for an evening walk.

'Prosy ! that isn't half ; he is one of the pokiest fellows in the world. Have a cigar, Fred ?'

'Thank you. How did you get such fine cigars ?'

'By paying for them.'

'You are growing daintier and finer every day. It is a wonder to me how you get so much out of five hundred a year. Of course, you do not have to pay your board as I do; and there is no need of a son of a president of a bank to depend wholly upon himself in any way, I suppose.'

'The president of a bank does not agree with you, I am sorry to say. Father gives me a lecture every once in a while. But one can't be young but once, and I intend to enjoy myself. Going to the party, Fred ?'

'I want to go badly enough ; but what with a new suit, a girl, etc., it would more than swamp me. I am in debt already for a suit I have half worn out. I tell you, Wal, five hundred a year is not half enough to live on if one can't have it all for spending money, as you do. They don't give us enough.'

'Of course they don't. I can't begin to live on my salary. I think I have earned twice as much as I have received every year I have been in the bank. There is one good thing about being prosy, as you call it, like Holloway ; since he has no genteel habits, and is contented to be a common drudge, he can not only live on his salary, but save two-thirds of it. The shabby, stingy fellow is actually putting money in the bank; although he hasn't a decent suit of clothes to his name, and looks so like destruction that he is not fit to sit at the first table, much less to be in a respectable bank.'

'How did he happen to get the place ?'

'His grandfather did something for my father when he was a boy, I believe. After Holloway's parents died, father heard that he was left poor, and sent word that if he would come here he could go into the bank, and pay his board at our house by doing chores He sees to the furnace, helps about the horses, etc. Father will not let anyone else say anything, but I heard him telling Halloway a month ago that he had better get some new clothes. Halloway didn't say much ; but he hasn't any new clothes yet, although he is getting shabby enough to disgrace the family.'

'He is too young and green to suit you. I never saw you speak to him.'

'I didn't care so much about his being two years younger than I am ; and as to his greenness, I was good-natured and foolish enough, to begin with, to think I would initiate him a little. But his verdancy proved to be so hopeless and his tastes so common that I soon gave up my benevolent efforts. His primness, too, was utterly discouraging. I offered him a cigar once, and what do you think the dingy ragamuffin said ?'

'I cannot imagine.'

'He said he could not afford to smoke, and if he could he should not like to soil his mouth with tobacco. Now isn't that a good joke for a fellow who has his hands in coal and hay a good part of the time, and not a decent coat to his back ? Afraid of soiling his mouth !'

'I should think so ! Hah ! Has he ever been to the theatre ?'

'No ; although at the time I undertook to be good-natured I offered him a ticket. I did not ask him to go with me, because he was so awkard and shabby ; but I thought I would do the best I could.'

'Didn't he want to go ?'

'I presume he was too bashful to go alone; but the excuse he gave was that he did not want to take presents. He said that if he should ever make up his mind to go to the theatre he would buy his own tickets, although he thanked me for the offer. I gave him up after that; he goes his way and I go mine. All I know about him is that he plods away at something in his room all the spare time that he has, and that he has saved nearly a hundred dollars this year, although his salary is only a hundred and fifty. Father says such a steady, saving young man will be rich some day, and I tell him he will be dull and uninteresting into the bargain. Why, the fellow never went to dancing school in his life, and he would not know what to do if he were in company with a young lady. The girls never take any notice of the poor fellow, and even mother can't bear to have him around, he is so shabby and so sober. If it were not for father he would have a hard time of it.'

'By the way, Wal, I heard you gave Jennie French a diamond ring awhile ago. Isn't that rather steep ? You must be made of money. It is all I can do to take a girl to a theatre once in a while, or to a festival.'

'Ah, Fred, you don't know the tricks of the trade yet. There are games in life that young men can play about as well as older men play theirs. Do you know how half the rich men get their money ? Why, they get it by tricks of some kind.'

'Did your father tell you so ?'

'Father ! Not much ! He is not very rich, and never will be ; he is not shrewd enough, and he is too nonsensical. If I thought you would not be silly, I would tell you something that would give you a hint how to increase your salary to the full worth of your services.'

'Do tell me, if you have any compassion. To own up, Wal, I am badly in debt, and afraid enough that my father will find it out.'

'All right. Let us get out of this crowded street first. Come over into the Park.'

II

Just after Walter and his friend left the house together, a middle-aged gentleman rang the bell and inquired for John Halloway.

'He is not in,' replied the servant.

'May I see Mr. Emmons, then ?'

The visitor was ushered into the library, where sat a fine-looking, affable gentleman, who greeted the stranger cordially, and to whom the latter introduced himself as Mr. Andrews. He said he had been a neighbor of John's father, and after Mr. Halloway lost his wife and was in a bad way himself, had lent him a little money—about a hundred dollars.

After Mr. Halloway died, the sale of his effects barely served to pay the bills for his sickness and funeral. As no one was left but the boy of fifteen, Mr. Andrews had not presented the note he held for the loan, or as much as mentioned the debt to any one. It appeared, however, that John had found a memorandum of the debt among his father's papers, and had come at once to Mr. Andrews to express his determination to cancel it as soon as he could earn enough.

'Never mind, John,' said I. 'Your father would have paid it had he lived and regained his health ; but you are under no obligations to do so. If you can earn your own living you will do well. Be sure I shall never ask you for the money, or tell any one that your father owed it. In fact, I would willingly have given so good a man as much in his necessity, and he was always a kind and obliging neighbor.'

'After John went away I forgot all about it, for I felt very sure the boy would have too much to do in earning his living to insist upon the payment of this old debt of his father. But here, yesterday, I received money for the payment of the debt, with interest to date. I have come in post-haste to see about it. I do not want the money from the boy, and I certainly will not take any interest. It is too bad.'

'Too bad ? Not at all, sir. It is just right. I knew nothing about the debt, but I am very glad to hear this account of John's honesty. It is what I should have expected of him under the circumstances ; and this explains why he has denied himself everything he could do without. I have just sent him on an errand, but he will be back soon. Happy the man, living or dead, who has a son like that ! He will make his mark in the world in more ways than one. Why, he has read half the books in this library since he has been here, besides doing his work at the bank and chores at home and running of errands for every one of us. Our delicately-nurtured city boys are failures compared with a boy like this. My son Walter is a fine fellow in his way ; but I should no more think of asking him to do the things that John does than I should think of asking him to fly. Ah ! here comes the hero.

A plainly dressed boy of between sixteen and seventeen, with a fine open countenance and modest appearance, entered the library, and his rather sober face brightened into radiance when he saw Mr. Andrews.

In the conversation which followed John said he could not see that he deserved praise for paying the debt ; his father had brought him up to be honest and to consider it a disgrace to leave any debt unpaid; as his father's death prevented him from canceling the debt himself, that duty devolved upon the son, not only in justice, but for keeping good his father's name and his own. He not only would not consent to his friend's request that he would allow him to return a part of the sum, but he would not accept back the interest which he had added.

After the admiring creditor had gone, with the remark, 'let no one say hereafter that there are no honest persons in the world,' John said gaily :

'I think I can pretty soon afford some new clothes, and look more respectable.'

'Those old clothes have been a credit to you, John,' replied Mr. Emmons with emotion—'more credit, by far, than many of our young dandies' clothes are to them. At some future day, when many of them go threadbare, you can wear your broadcloth with honor.'

At that moment another caller was announced, and John left the room.

III.

The visitor was the cashier of the bank of which Mr. Emmons was president. He looked sad and anxious, and asked Mr. Emmons if he was sure that no one could overhear their conversation.

'We are quite alone,' replied Mr. Emmons ; 'but what is the matter ? Has anything happened to the bank ?'

'Almost the worst. One of our clerks is a defaulter; he has during the past year appropriated money to the amount of several thousand dollars. It has been done so gradually and in such an ingenious manner that the embezzlement might have gone on undiscovered but for a singular incident this afternoon.'

'Who is the thief ?' demanded Mr. Emmons.

The cashier was silent, but his awed and sorrowful countenance was answer enough.

'Can it be my son ?' exclaimed Mr. Emmons.

'It is he,' replied the cashier, wiping his face with his handkerchief. 'But,' he added quickly, 'I have come as soon as possible, Mr. Emmons, before the matter has got beyond the bank, to see if it cannot be paid and hushed up.'

Mr. Emmons looked like a man who had received a heavy blow ; but he answered firmly, though in a terribly broken voice :

'It can be paid, but it cannot be hushed. I said the last time that an affair of this kind was hushed up in this city, after more than one young man had been tempted to embezzlement by just such cloaking of fraud, that I would never connive to let any young man go free of his country's laws. I said it openly, and now I will not shield my son from the punishment he so richly deserves. There is but one thing to be done at present, and that is to arrest the culprit at once.'

The cashier begged Mr. Emmons not to be hasty ; to consider the mother's and sister's grief, Walter's youth, and the ineffaceable blot which would be cast upon his future. He spoke of the young man's amiability and generosity, of his being such a favorite in society.'

'Not to save my own life, or that of wife or daughter, will I be more lenient to my son than I would be to any other man's,' replied Mr. Emmons, firmly. 'If you will not inform the sheriff I will go myself.'

'No, I will go,' replied the cashier. 'You will be needed here to prepare your family for the blow.'

When Walter reached home, it was to find his mother and sister in tears and sobs, his father looking ten years older than when he last saw him at the supper table, and the sheriff solemnly awaiting him in the midst of the agonizing group.

After a brief but distressing scene the young man was led away by the officer, and his mother sank fainting into his father's arms.

As soon as possible Mr. Emmons followed his son to the jail, and there, in the quiet of the dreary cell, the young man confessed all, even to the fact of having told Fredrick Copp how to add to his salary by theft, and persuaded the young man to think seriously of an attempt to do so. Now that Walter was brought to view his act from his father's standpoint, he began to realize the enormity of his crime, not only against the bank, but the commonwealth and the family whose happiness depended on his honor and his good name.

He humbly promised his father to abide strictly by the latter's advice, which was that he should declare himself guilty, and take his State Prison sentence as the best thing for himself and the community. During years of solitude and hard labor there would be opportunity for the iron conviction that honesty is one of the most necessary foundations of manly character to sink deep into his soul. Then, if he could come out purified as by fire, and face the community he had wronged, with the determination to live down a disgrace so terrible, and firmly carry out that determination, let the world sneer as it might at this error of the past, it could not rob him of the satisfaction of having suffered for his sin, and become heroically manly on account of it.

Walter Emmons was taken away from the jail to serve out his sentence in State Prison, while John Halloway, whose honesty had been as accidentally and clearly established as had Walter's guilt, was, upon Mr. Emmons' representation, promoted to the place Walter had held in the bank.

During the years that followed John took the place of a kind and thoughtful son and brother in that sorrowing family.

IV.

After five long years had passed, Walter returned home, a grave, serious, earnest man, with the one purpose in life to win back the confidence of his friends and the community in general. He declined to accept any position of trust, although several such positions were offered by those who were confident that he, of all men, would now be honest; he preferred to go into a manufacturing establishment and perform manual labor, as this was a position not calculated to awaken remarks regarding his past breach of trust. He applied himself steadily to his work, dressed plainly, and laid aside all that he could to repay his father for the loss which the latter had made good to the bank. It was slow work, but he refused to accept his father's offer to throw off the interest ; and as he rose, by his fidelity and careful study of the interests of the concern, to a position which commanded a good salary, he accumulated the amount in the course of eight years

Walter declared that it was the happiest moment of his life when he presented his father with the last payment due ; and he certainly looked as happy as a serious young man of thirty could look. It was thirteen years since he had laughed with his friend over the plainly-dressed, bashful young country boy, who was now an honored cashier in the bank of which the young man who had once pronounced him "prosy" was now a teller. John Halloway was shortly to marry Edith Emmons, the noble and beautiful daughter of the family, who had not been too old to sit upon his knee when he first came to live at her father's.

'I am thirty years old to-day,' said Walter, 'and I hope to live as many more, that I may have time to as fully retrieve the past as it is in human power to atone for a wrong act. I know I do not stand as well with the world in general as I did before these thirteen years of suffering and hard work and honest endeavor to do well, but in my own soul I know that, thanks to your firmness, father, I have more character to-day than I had when I was a self-indulgent, dandified young man, and thought it manly to smoke and dress finely and make a show in society.'

'And with all that lies between, my son, I am prouder of you than I ever was then,' replied Mr. Emmons brushing away a tear. 'He who has retrieved an error by patient suffering and well-doing may wear a crown that shall not only conceal the brand that was given for his crime, but eventually obliterate it.'

'God grant it may be so,' said the young man fervently.

Mrs. Smith—I am very sorry, Mrs. Hendricks, but I consider it my duty to inform you that I saw your husband coming out of a saloon last evening.

Mrs. Hendricks—What time was it, Mrs. Smith ?

Mrs. Smith—About 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Hendricks—Did you say he was coming out or going in ?

Mrs. Smith—Coming out.

Mrs. Hendricks (positively) — You have mistaken him for some one else. John never comes out of a saloon as early as 8 o'clock.

V.

A year later the terrible storm of civil war burst upon the United States, and the bugle call to arms resounded through the land.

Walter Emmons was among the very first to enlist. John Holloway would gladly have done the same ; but one of them was needed at home, and Walter entreated that this opportunity might not be denied him. By his own exertions and enthusiasm he collected about him men enough to form a company, and his cool and fearless bravery in many engagements soon raised him to the rank of colonel.

Upon one of the battlefields whose name will not die out of history, volunteers were called for to lead a desperate attack upon a very formidable battery. Not more than one out of twenty of the leading force could probably survive the charge.

Colonel Emmons replied : 'If my men will follow me I will gladly lead the charge.'

The regiment, who had learned to love their commander, not only for his bravery, but on account of his kindness of heart and genial manners, immediately waved their hats, cheered, and cried :

'We will follow you.'

'It will be a fearful charge,' said the General.

'For that reason it is well fitting that I should undertake it,' replied the Colonel firmly and cheerfully. 'I would be glad to spare my men, if it were a soldier's duty to spare in time of need ; but for myself no risk can be too great ; I should be happy to die for my country.'

The charge was immediately made, with gallant fearlessness and determination.

Colonel Emmons was scaling the parapet, amid the remnant of those who had followed him, while the aiding column was pressing on behind over the bodies of his men, who lay thickly in the path up to the battery. His left arm hung useless by his side, his face was covered with powder and blood, his uniform was wet with the life-blood of men who had fallen by his side ; but he waved his hat and cried in trumpet tones :

'Press on, boys ! press on !'

Just then a well aimed bullet entered his left side, and he fell mortally wounded, just as the Union flag was planted within the battery and fresh troops were pouring over the parapets to make good the victory.

Tenderly he was borne to a place of safety, but he survived only long enough to know that the battery had been securely taken.

'Tell my father,' said he, with blanching lips, 'that I died happy in the hope that my service for my country might in part atone for the sin and folly of my youth.'

* * * * *

On the Emmons lot, in the beautiful cemetery, there arose a granite shaft, upon which was inscribed :

To the Memory of
COLONEL WALTER EMMONS.
He Died in the Service of his Country.

Below is inscribed in Latin, which few who do not know his early history take the pains to translate and interpret :

By one virtue some have covered a multitude of sins ;
By the practice of many virtues did this man patiently strive to cover one sin of his youth.

To this place every Sabbath for years a white-haired man came with a wreath of pure white flowers, which he placed tenderly upon the smooth green sod in summer, and in winter upon the whiter snow. Sometimes he came alone; sometimes he was accompanied by a lady with gray hair, and often by a fine looking man with a beautiful lady on his arm.

But oftener a little boy was with him, and then it was he who carried the white flowers. The child's name was Walter Emmons Halloway.

One day Walter asked his grandfather to read the Latin inscription to him, but his grandfather replied :

'Not yet, my boy—not yet ; you are not old enough.'

'When shall I be old enough, grandfather ?'

'When it is time for you to take any position of trust, my child.'—Christian Union.

A RARE DOG.

How He Ran Up a Tree After the "Boss of All the Coons."

[Philadelphia Call.]

It is very rare that a raccoon falls a victim to the hunter after cold weather has set in, for it is a hibernating animal, and stows itself away at the approach of winter. The average weight of a coon is twenty pounds, and the hunter who captures one in the height of the most favorable coon feeding season which weighs more is looked upon as having accomplished a notable feat. James Sandys, of Hunter's Range, during the fall killed thirty-nine coons, and recently surprised the community by fetching in the 'boss of all coons,' a mammoth fellow that weighed thirty-five pounds, the largest by eight pounds ever captured in this vicinity. Sandys hunts with an unusually active and intelligent dog. On Saturday he was out after pheasants, when the coon sprang out of a stone wall and gave the dog as lively a chase, with the thermometer at zero, as any coon ever did in September. After a run of a mile the coon ran up a large tree, the trunk of which leaned at an angle of about forty-five degrees. When Sandys reached the spot he found that the dog had not only treed the coon, but had also treed himself, for he had run up the leaning trunk of the tree and reached the very top, where the coon had crept out on the extremity of a branch beyond the reach of the dog. Sandys brought the coon to the ground with a charge from his gun, but had greater difficulty in recovering his dog. The animal could not descend the tree trunk, and the hunter had to 'shin' up and bring him down. The dog was sixty feet in the air, and the lowest branch of the tree was twenty feet from the ground. When Sandys got down to that branch, with the dog's neck grasped in one hand, he found that he couldn't descend any farther without using both hands. But the dog settled the matter by squirming loose and dropping to the ground on his feet.

A FIVE-DAY NAP.

Young Mr. Hanks Appears to Have Needed a Long Sleep.

[N. Y. Times.]

Alva Banks, a clerk in the grocery of George Washburn & Co., in Pleasantville, Westchester County, N. Y., is twenty-two years old, good looking and popular. On last Thursday morning, while at work in the store he began to get drowsy. He kept walking about to keep awake. He had had a good sleep on the night before. At noon he went home to dinner, but he fell asleep while he was eating. He awoke and finished his dinner, but after dinner he thought he would lie down and take a nap. On reaching his room he felt so sleepy that he undressed himself and went to bed. He went directly to sleep and kept on sleeping. On Saturday morning he was sleeping as peacefully as a child. He had not moved a muscle after he went to bed. His brother punched him and tickled him, pulled him out of bed and threw him back into it. He showed no signs of waking.

Dr. DeHart was called in on Saturday forenoon. A pin stuck into Banks' leg had no effect upon him at first, but when the doctor pushed the pin in nearly to the head the leg drew up, but Banks slumbered on. Spannish fly blisters—a kind of slow torture—were spread over the whole length of his spinal column and on the back of his neck. The doctor also gave him some cathartic treatment. Bank's still slept.

On Sunday morning members of the family, by vigorous treatment, aroused him. He rolled over, yawned and went to sleep again. They kept slapping him, and finally he sat up, rubbed his eyes and said he was tired. He was pulled out, and he walked into another room, where he sat down in a chair and went off to sleep again. He swallowed mechanically some food which was forced into his mouth, and he drank a little water. On Sunday afternoon he was awakened more easily. It was not until Tuesday morning that he woke for good. He had no inclination to sleep further, and seemed to be as bright and as strong as ever. His long sleep had been a quiet one. He had not even dreamed when the blisters were gnawing at his neck and back. On Wednesday night he was about the store in his usual condition, except that his back was so sore that he couldn't bend it.

Banks had had a long sleep twice before. The first time was about ten years ago, when mumps developed into inflammation of the covering of the brain. After a day of delirium he went to bed and slept soundly and uninterruptedly for six days in spite of a council of doctors. Three years ago he had another sleep of three days. It came on like the one last week. It is said they are due in part to over-exertion. Banks is an energetic young man, and he has a great deal of responsibility in the store, which just now is busy filling the orders of men at work on the new aqueduct.

The Indian Question.

A tall and commanding-looking Indian from the Canada side, having a big back load of door-mats on his back, was tramping up Randolph street yesterday when a man in a saloon beckoned him in. The red man's face lighted up with a 'ten-cent apiece' smile of satisfaction as he walked in. There were three men present, and they seemed to be in a hilarious state.

'See here old copper-face,' said one, as he shut and locked the door. 'I'm down on Injuns, first, last and all the time. They shot an uncle of mine, and I've sworn revenge. Maybe you are ready to take the all firedest licking a redskin ever got !'

'Hu !' replied the Indian, as he looked from one to the other.

'And the vermints scalped and roasted my grandmother !' put in the second white man. 'I didn't care particularly about the old lady, but it's the principle of the thing I look at. I've got to have Injun blood !'

'Hu !' said the Indian, as he seemed to catch on.

'And I,' put in the third man, 'am down on Injuns in a general way. After these other two fellers have got through with you I propose to walk on the mangled remains. Let the performance now begin !'

It begun. People who looked in at the windows could see nothing. People who got a look through the open door saw hats, door mats, saw dust and chairs hovering in the air, but not for long. In about three minutes the red man stalked forth, somewhat flustrated and a little bit worn away, but he had not lost a drop of blood nor a door mat.

Inside the saloon all was peaceful and serene. The man whose uncle was shot was lying under the table; the one whose grandmother was shot seemed trying awful hard to remember how the affair began, and the one who went in on general principles was looking out of two black eyes at a ruined nose.

'Hu?' called the Indian as he was ready to move on.

But no one hewed.—Detroit Free Press.

L. A. SHAFFER, Secretary. ADAM HOY, Chairman.

On Monday of last week the prescribed season of mourning in the army for Gen. Grant was at an end, when on the next day, Tuesday, orders came to put on the badges of mourning again for Gen. Hancock.

GEN. HANCOCK having died poor and having left his wife in comparatively straightened circumstances, the American people's generosity is called upon to lend a helping hand. New York and Philadelphia have already initiated the movement by liberal subscriptions and Harrisburg and other cities are following suit.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND replied through Secretary Lamar to a resolution of inquiry by the senate in the case of Henry Ward, the discharged Indian Inspector, demanding all papers and letters filed in the secretary's office as follows:

I am also directed by the President to say that he does not consider it consistent with the public interests to transmit copies of unofficial papers from private citizens held in my custody for him which relate exclusively to the suspension of incumbents.

THE following article from the Philadelphia Record contains a few strong and warning points as to the reckless clearing of our forests which is going on by means of saw mills at present:

The flow of water in the Schuylkill River during the summer season has been reduced in volume one-half during the past sixty years. This is the result of cutting away the forests in the highlands in which it finds its source. The winter and spring rainfall, instead of being held back in the spongy upper soil of the woods, falls on the denuded hillsides and plunges at once into the water courses, filling them and rushing to the sea in devastating floods. The water which should have been a part of our supply during the hot months has just gone tearing past us in a soon-subsiding torrent. With more tree cutting and no tree-planting our floods will be come more serious and our summer water-famines more lasting.

Hancock's Funeral.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning, before the guard of honor had drawn up in front of the late General Hancock's mansion on Governor's Island, the general's widow, accompanied by two lady friends, entered the room where the hero lay and took a parting look at his face. Mrs. Hancock's grief was pitiful. She kissed her husband's forehead, while the tears fell fast from her overflowing eyes. A Loyal Legion laurel wreath was laid upon the coffin, and it was borne, shortly afterward, to the steamer, Chester A. Arthur, which brought it with the mourners to New York.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—At 2.10 o'clock the Hancock funeral train drew up at the Park station, in this city. Here three cars from the Broad street station, bearing Governer Pattison and staff and 150 members of the Loyal Legion, wearing white gloves and the badge of the order, were hitched on, and the train moved on to Norristown, arriving at 2.50. The casket was taken from the train promptly, and W. A. Ruddach, a local undertaker, assumed charge. The hearse was surmounted by six plumes, as are used ordinarily. The hearse was drawn by two black horses, with nothing beyond the usual trappings. As the casket was lifted from the car, a signal was given, and instantly the bells on the churches and all public buildings commenced tolling. This was continued until the arrival of the funeral procession at the cemetery.

There was no service at the tomb. All alighted from their carriages, and eight stalwart soldiers lifted the coffin and bore it through the open gateway, while a battery from Governor's Island fired a salute. On the coffin was placed a wreath of immortelles bearing the single word of "Husband," and all was over. The bugler sounded "taps," the battery sounded the salute to the dead, thirteen guns, and the great throng of onlookers dispersed.

HORATIO SEYMOUR DEAD.

CLOSE OF A LONG, HONORED EVENTFUL CAREER.

A Politician from His Youth, Twice Governor of New York and Once Democratic Candidate for the Presidency.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 12.— Ex-Governor Seymour died at exactly 10 o'clock to-night at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Roscoe Conkling. He began to fail perceptibly at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Shortly afterward, owing to stimulants being administered to him, he rallied a little but soon relapsed into total unconsciousness. During his illness he experienced little, if any, physical suffering and to-day was wholly without pain. Mrs. Seymour, who is very ill, sat with her husband during the afternoon. Most of the time the ex-governor rested peacefully and his conditon could only be distinguished from a natural sleep by the ashen pallor of his countenance and his labored breathing.

At half-past 8 he was sinking rapidly, his pulse could scarcely be counted and the respiration was more difficult. He expired without a struggle and as peacefully as if falling asleep. The immediate cause of his death was cerebral effusion, the usual process of death in old age. Those present when he passed away were Mrs. Seymous and her sister, Mrs. Nelson, of New Brunswick, N. J., the ex-governor's brother, John F. Seymour, of Utica; his sisters, Mrs. Linculaer and Mrs. Conkling, Dr. W. E. Ford and Judge Buler.

Mourning For Seymour.

UTICA, Feb. 13.—The funeral of Ex-Governor Seymour will take place from Trinity Church, Utica, at 2 P. M. on Tuesday, February 16. President Cleveland telegraphed as follows:

"I wish the grief of the people, who mourn a citizen of national fame and a Christian gentleman of the purest example, might lighten the sad bereavement and assuage the sacred sorrow of his stricken wife."

S. J. Tilden telegraphs the following to John F. Seymour:

"I learn this morning the sorrowful intelligence that the mortal career of your illustrious brother is closed. Convey to his relatives, and when a suitable occasion arrives to Mrs. Seymour, my warm sympathies at their loss. We have the consolation of knowing that he passed away without suffering, in the fullness of years and mind and amid the largest homage of public esteem."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The New York delegation held a meeting in the House ways and means committee room to-day immediately after the adjournment of the House and passed resolutions expressing sorrowing at the death of Ex-Governor Seymour and eulogizing his great public services and private worth.

Miscellaneous News.

Many of the 400 miners thrown out of employment by the suspension of Warren Run colliery are leaving the district. Numerous houses are already vacated, and this heretofore prosperous locality is likely to become almost entirely deserted.

The natural effort of the lungs to expel the suffocating mucus is coughing. Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine contains no morphia or opium in any form, and by its stimulating actions on the kidneys, bowels, and pores of the skin, more than any other remedy, assists Nature in breaking up and expelling the worst colds from the system. PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for March opens with an article that will attract more than ordinary interest: "Salem and Salem Whitchcraft," illustrated with engravings of the house where the witches were tried—a fac-simile of the deathwarrants, etc., etc. The other articles—original stories—are all of usual high character which distinguishes "Peterson." There is a charming steel-engraving, "Dear Mamma"; a mammoth colored fashion-plate; a colored pattern for Java canvass; and not less than fifty wood-cuts, illustrating fashions, embroidery-patterns, etc., etc. It seems to us that every lady, and even every family, must find this magazine indispensable. The price is but Two Dollars a year, which places it within the reach of all: with great deductions to clubs, and costly premiums for getting up clubs. Specimens are sent gratis to those wishing to get up clubs. Now is a good time to get up clubs. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Singular Occurrence.

Salamanca (N. Y.) Republican.

A singular occurrence is reported at Hamburg, Erie County. Carrie Partridge, whose parents live at Blesdel, was playing 'blind man's buff' with companions, and suddenly cried out 'I cannot see.' As she was blindfolded her first exclamation was treated as a joke, but her evident terror soon convinced her playmates that she had been really stricken blind. Her parents consulted medical authorities, but there seemed to be no aid for the child.

—The clergy, medical faculty and people all endorse Burdock Blood Bitters as the best system renovating, blood purifying tonic in the world. Send for testimonials.

—THE MOST REMARKABLE Case of all. A gentleman writes us from Philipsburg, Centre Co, Pa., that his little girl was horribly afflicted with scrofula. Her body was full of sores, ears discharging continually thick yellow putrid matter, and her eyes so swollen and inflamed as to be almost blind. One bottle of McDonald's Blood Purifier has to all appearances entirely cured her. Our neighbors as well as ourselves consider the cure remarkable.

A bonafide case. The address of the family can be obtained from the editor of this paper.

THE State Superintendent of Public Instruction comes gallantly to the rescue of the lady teachers with a protest against paying men larger salaries for the same grade of work. The case has a hopeful feature, however, for the school ma'ams. It appears that the number of male teachers is steadily decreasing, and that their weaker if not wiser co-workers are gradually crowding them out of the profession. The Superintendent thinks the unjust discrimination against female teachers should be removed. Doing equal work, and, in most cases, the best primary work in the State, it is unreasonable that they should not receive corresponding remuneration.

Big Fire at Renovo.

RENOVO, Feb. 10.—The large passenger car shop of the railroad company was totally destroyed by fire at midnight. The fire was the most destructive in value of property destroyed that has ever occurred here. The alarm promptly brought the railroad and borough fire department to the scene, but the fire had progressed so far before being discovered that the efforts of the firemen were exerted entirely in saving contiguous buildings. The burned building was of frame with tin roof and iron supports, and was used for the building of passenger cars, as a cabinet shop for railroad work, and in the construction of bridges. The entire contents of the building including two newly completed passenger cars were destroyed. The loss on account of the building will aggregate $10,000; contents, including the valuable tools of the workmen, $15,000. The work of renewing the burned structure will probably soon begin.—Clinton Democrat.

Important Decisions.

The Pennsylvania and Reading Railroads Subject to the Constitution of 1874.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 15.—The Supreme Court handed down this morning two cases which will be of vast importance to the people of this Commonwealth. They are the cases of the Pennsylvania Railroad Comyany vs. Duncan, and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company vs. Patent. Both were argued early last spring, and have thus been pending in the Supreme Court for nearly a year. In both the question was squarely raised and ably argued whether the respective companies are subject to the provisions of the constitution of 1874, which provides that owners of property taken for public uses shall be consequential injuries. The Supreme Court, in two long opinions by Judge Gordan, decides these questions in favor of the plaintiffs and against the railroad companies.

FIRE AT CENTRE HALL.—About 12 o'clock, noon, to-day (Wednesday) the coach shop occupied by John T. Lee, on East Church street, this place, was discovered to be on fire. Aaron Thomas, who lives near by, was the first to notice the flames and hurrying to the scene dashed a pail of water on the parts ablaze and almost extinguished the fire. Upon his return with an additional supply of water however, the flames had taken deep root, and efforts to save the building were in vain. By this time a number of other citizens had made their appearance and carried from the burning building gearing of three buggies, lumber, tools, and such other goods as they could secure. A large amount of lumber, spokes, paints, oil, tread-power, tools, and other articles were burned, but were insured. The building, belonging to Jacob and John Arney, was worth about $400. We do not know whether the building was insured or not. The cause of the fire is unknown. It originated in a room upstairs next to one in which Mr. Lee had been working until near noon. —Centre Hall Reporter. Feb. 10.

—The proper committee of the town council had occasion to look after an unpardonable nuisance yesterday. AN ACCIDENT.—One of James Dutweiler's boys, on North street, aged about 6 years, had three of his fingers chopped off by one of Abe. King's boys on Wednesday of last week. The little fellows were playing with an axe when the accident happened. Not a very healthy plaything for children.

—Some of our "young gentlemen" amused themselves the other night by using Adolph Miller's cigar sign as a target for their missiles and succeeded in completely demolishing the same. Of course they were found out and the damage had to be made good. Boys, whenever you are tempted to indulge in fun of this kind again, remember that you may not slip off as easy.

CASHMERES, CASHMERES, CASHMERES.—We have this day received a full line of new cashmeres which we intend to make a run on by selling cheaper than ever before We defy competition in the county in this particular line. Remember we have shades and prices to suit everyone. Whether you intend to buy or not, do not fail to look at them. Yours truly,
D. S. KAUFFMAN & Co.

—Rev. Steck's lecture in the Lutheran church of Rebersburg on last Thursday evening was listened to by a large audience. On account of the very inclement weather but very few from this place ventured to go. But they returned highly pleased with the lecture and declare it the most thrilling and powerful discourse they ever listened to. In fact the Lutherans of this place are completely inflamed with the desire to have Rev. Steck lecture at this place. We are truly anxious ourselves to have the plan carried out at an early day, and are of the opinion that it can be made a success in every way.

ANOTHER SUDDEN DEATH. — The sudden death of Mr. Henry Stover, the only son of Mr. Andrew Stover, of Coburn, which occurred on Thursday night of last week, was a complete surprise to the many friends of most estimable young man. Deceased was apparently in good health until a few days before his death and was engaged the greater part of the winter in hauling material on the ground for a new house at Coburn. He was a man of untarnished character and industrial habits and enjoyed the confidence and respect of the whole community. At the time of his death, which was due to pneumonia, he was one of Penn township's school directors. The fact that he was but in the prime of manhood makes the shock all the heavier to his aggrieved parents, who have the sincere sympathy of all their friends and acquaintances. The remains were interred in the cemetery of the Reformed church at Aaronsburg, of which he was a devout member, on Sunday forenoon, when a very large concourse of friends attended the funeral.

—Pursuant to a call of a meeting the citizens of Millheim convened in the office of Adolph Miller, on Saturday evening to take action on the question of future control and supervision of the Town Clock. W. R. Weiser was chosen chairman of the meeting and after a free discussion of present and future needs the following resolutions were unanimously agreed to :

Resolved, that the present or purchasing committee continue in the care and control of said clock until May 1st next and on that day surrender the control of said clock to the permanent committee, comprised of the persons hereinafter named ; and that for their efficient labors in procuring and keeping said clock in running order the thanks of the community are due them.

Resolved, that the future or permanent committee shall consist of two of the Trustees of the Ev. church of Millheim and the Chief Burgess of the borough, and their respective successors afterwards from year to year. Said committee to take charge of said clock on the day aforesaid with powers of absolute control to devise such measures and means as may in their judgement be advisable and necessary toward keeping it in running order and securing to the community continuous and correct time, or as near so as circumstances will reasonably allow.

GOOD ADVICE.—Aaronsburg is rather an old town. Men who have lived here for seventy and more years will tell you to-day that it never has been a very progressive town. In point of morals, in decency and general good behavior, none of our sister towns can face us and say, we are equal with you. In this connection we wish to say a few words to the boys, or rather the young men of our town, hoping they will read and profit by what we say. You boys of to-day, have you ever thought to inquire of yourselves who will succeed our old fathers of 70, a few years hence. Have you ever considered how soon you will be required to take up the burden of life, and assume the cares and responsibilities that, according to nature's law, will be handed down to you by your fathers. Very soon some of you will be called upon to become the merchants, mechanics, editors, lawyers and doctors of our towns, and the sooner you stop, think and realize this, the better it will be for you. Life is not very satisfactory at the best, but remember, boys, your lives will be very much what you make them. To engage in evil doing, such as swearing, drinking whiskey and making indicent remarks about your fellow-man, and especially of the young girls, we wish to assure you will never bring you good results. Honest, intelligent boys, who have no bad habits, are always in demand, and these are they who make the honored citizens of the world, and within you is the power to make of yourselves great and good men. How often do we hear young men say that it don't pay to engage in bad habits, such as drinking whiskey and swearing, and should you so err in your young life you will certainly ever after regret it, and in your later and better life you will always hate to recall the acts of your younger days.

It is said that "a little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men." Yes, fun, real fun, is an excellent thing in its place, and you are expected to have lots of it while you are boys, but you must guard against mistaking wrong-doing and bad habits for fun. There are many sins of depraved youth committed on the sly and the world being none the wiser. But here you deceive yourselves, boys. "Be sure your sins will find you out." What you start out to accomplish that will you surely do, and it is with you to become a man in the true sense of the word, one who posesses steady and industrious habits, together with sobriety and economy, or you may become a shiftless, worthless tramp or whiskey soak, and boys, sooner or later you will be called upon to decide whether you will be something or nothing. * * *

—Have mercy on your wife ! No smell, no moisture, no rags, no burns, no scalds. Buy her an "Odorless" Kettle.

SMITH TOWN.

A word of two letters put down every man in last Wednesday's spelling bee—"pi."

Mr. Kurt Condo, from St. Paul, Minn., was visiting here last week.

Quite a number of our folks are complaining with sore throats. Mrs. H. E. Duck is suffering from that disease at present.

Michael Grave, of Lemont, the well-known horse dealer, called on a few of his friends in this section last week.

The teamsters on Noah Stover's track of woodland are unable to haul logs to the mill since the snow is gone.

Mr. Web Smith, of Dayton, Armstrong Co., Pa., and Oscar Bartley, of Bellefonte, in company with Annie and William Smith of Millheim, were in this neck o' woods on a visit.
JUMBO.

Spring Mills.

The venerable Peter Wilson, of this place, celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday this week. He is in reasonably good health.

It is rumored that a stave machine is to be erected at this place by spring.

Emanuel Zettle, Esq., received the solid vote of the southern precinct of Gregg township for the office of Collector of Taxes. Both parties voted for him solid. *

AARONSBURG.

Well, I am back again. A week lost can never be regained.

Lulu and Minnie will certainly not forget their last sleigh ride.

Anyone desiring information in regard to R. R. ticket rates, etc., to Kans., can call on Andy Musser, Aaronsburg, Pa.

The coming musical concert, to be conducted by the Hon. J. G. Meyer, assisted by Prof. Lowell Meyer, will certainly be a good one, judging by its conductors.

Rev. Deitzler's german sermon two weeks ago was very interesting as well as instructive. He selected as his central truth, "The Bible looking-glass."

Geo. Kreighbaum, Dr. P. T. Musser's best man, occupies the doctor's tenant house lately vacated by Francis Zerby.

Those young men of our town who are guilty of carrying concealed deadly weapons, should be more careful. The law has no mercy on boys carrying such weapons.

A force of men are at work moving the furnace in the new Ref. church to a more central part of the building.
ANOTHER.

COBURN.

It seems as though Spring was coming in spite of the ground hog's prediction. Well, we have our own opinion of a groundhog that would come out on a day, when the thermometer marks 15 degrees below zero.

Our friend Frank Barker, had the misforture to have one of his ribs broken last week, while in a scuffle.

Mrs. W. H. Kreamer and daughter Gracie, are off to Ashland, Ohio, on an extended visit.

It becomes our painful duty this week to chronicle the sad demise of our esteemed and much-loved citizen, Henry Stover, who died Thursday evening, Feb. 11th, and was buried on Sunday morning. He was 29 years old, a consistent member of the Reformed church, and an exemplary young man.

Miss Lydia Musser, of Haines township, while on a visit to Mr. Em'l Kerstetter's last week, contracted a cold and died in a few days thereafter at the advanced ags of 66 years. She was taken back to Haines township and interred on Friday.

The manner in which the primary election is manipulated in our township is not very satisfactory to the majority of the citizens. All persons attending the caucuses have a perfect right to vote for the nominees, and this thing of one or two persons "slating" a ticket, will very likely be done away with hereafter. Why not hold the primaries in some school house where all interested can get in and have a say. Bosh on "Machine Work !"

School report : No. of pupils enrolled 48 ; average attendance 44, per cent. of attendance 91. Average progress 1¼—Average conduct 2. DAMFINO.

WOODWARD.

Theodore Hosterman captured a fine coon last Friday.

Mrs. Catharine Orndorf will move to Woodward in the spring.

N. W. Eby had an order from Tremont, Ohio, for one barrel of whiskey. He did not say if or not it was from Ex-Pres. Hayes.

Rev. Mountz delivered his farewell sermon last Sunday. "How sad it is in this brief life of ours to do anything for the last time." ARGENTI.

Rebersburg and Vicinity.

Prof. C. C. Spangler will this week visit some of our public schools.

The lecture on last Thursday night by Rev. Chas. T. Steck was a rare treat, but owing to the inclement weather the house was not crowded as was expected.

The lawsuit on last Wednesday was quite interesting. Bower and Fortney of Bellefonte were here as attorneys.

Jacob Gephart is making preparations to build a new barn this spring. Cornelius Bowersox, of Snyder county, will do the carpenter work.

Miss Martha Gramley, formerly of this valley, but now residing at Hinkley, Ill., is at present here visiting friends, but will shortly leave again for her western home.

Rebersburg will have no convention this winter, although we have two well conducted singing classes under the tutorship of Prof. Bierly.

Something new in our valley—a printing press with Clark Gramley as operator. He is turning out cards, hand bills, etc.

We are told that the teacher of Gramley's school has several times informed the directors of the district that the coal stove in the school room is out of repairs, but it seems of no avail. Would it not be well for the school board to look after the matter, as it endangers the health and lives of the scholars. The stove fills with gas below which suddenly escapes, with a dull report, from all crevices and openings and fills the house with smoke and unhealthy odors. This state of affairs may one day lay the building in ashes, and all through sheer neglect. Waken up, Jacob. "SQUIBOB."

MADISONBURG.

Miss Tuly Miller, of Jacksonville, is visiting at Jacob W. Hazel's.

Jacob B. Hazel has been confined to the house the last few days from a slight attack of lung fever.

Mr. Henry Beck has been appointed postmaster of Madisonburg. Mr. Beck is a trustworthy man and we feel proud of him.

Distemper is going the rounds among the horses at present. There are very few stables this disease has not visited.
STILL.

Obituaries.

On the 3rd, inst., Mrs. Catharine A., wife of Andrew J. Stover of Haines township, after a brief illness, suddenly fell asleep in death, at the age of 36 years, 10 months and 15 days. She was the daughter of Martin and Julia Stover, and the mother of six children, four of whom are still living. She was a member of the Reformed church, a christian lady, a faithful wife and a loving mother. A large concourse of friends and neighbors followed her remains to the cemetery at Wolf's school house, where her pastor delivered the funeral discourse based on Isaiah 3 : 10.

On the evening of the 11th. inst., the Penn's Creek community was shocked upon hearing of the sudden death of Henry, the only son of Andrew and Mary Stover of Coburn. He had been ailing for eight or ten days, but no one seemed to regard him as seriously ill. He was free from pain and unusually cheerful even to the last minute. He complained of excessive weakness. On the day of his death he ate a hearty supper and in a few minutes thereafter was a corpse. Henry was a faithful son, a worthy young man and a consistent member of the Reformed church. The future for him seemed to be fraught with the brightest prospects of usefulness both to the church and to the community in which he lived; but the fond hopes of loving hearts were suddenly arrested when he was called to his reward at the age of 29 years, 2 months and 22 days. The funeral took place at Aaronsburg on the 14th, inst., and it is supposed that nearly 500 persons were in attendance. The pastor preached from 1st Cor. 15: 57 58. Z.A.Y.

MARRIED.

On the 7th, inst., by Rev. Z. A. Yearick, at Aaronsburg, Mr. James W. Smith and Miss Irene C. Reinhart, both of Haines township.

DIED

On the 10th inst., in Haines township, Miss Lydia Musser, aged 66 years, 11 months and 22 days.

On the 16th inst., at Spring Mills, Mrs. Evans, wife of Wm. B. Evans, Esq., aged 73 years.

Do You Suffer from Constipation?

Testimony of HIRAM WARNER, Chief-Justice of Ga.: "I have used Simmons Liver Regulator for Constipation of my Bowels, caused by a temporary Derangement of the Liver, for the last three or four years, and always with decided benefit."

An Efficient Remedy

In all cases of Bronchial and Pulmonary Affections is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. As such it is recognized and prescribed by the medical profession, and in many thousands of families, for the past forty years, it has been regarded as an invaluable household remedy. It is a preparation that only requires to be taken in very small quantities, and a few doses of it administered in the early stages of a cold or cough will effect a speedy cure, and may, very possibly, save life. There is no doubt whatever that

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Has preserved the lives of great numbers of persons, by arresting the development of Laryngitis, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Pulmonary Consumption, and by the cure of those dangerous maladies. It should be kept ready for use in every family where there are children, as it is a medicine far superior to all others in the treatment of Croup, the alleviation of Whooping Cough, and the cure of Colds and Influenza, ailments peculiarly incidental to childhood and youth. Promptitude in dealing with all diseases of this class is of the utmost importance. The loss of a single day may, in many cases, entail fatal consequences. Do not waste precious time in experimenting with medicines of doubtful efficacy, while the malady is constantly gaining a deeper hold, but take at once the speediest and most certain to cure,

A Sensible Farmer.

He Proves That Kindness Only Is Necessary to Teach Calves to Drink.

"Every calf must have its neck broke before it can get its nose down into a pail,' said an old farmer as he stood astride a young calf, having just been doing his best to accomplish the feet aboye alluded to. I felt as if I would not have been as much excited as he was for the calf.

I am a comparatiyely young farmer, but haye never had any trouble teaching calves to drink. First, I take them away from the cow before they get their first meal. After a few hours, milk the cow and take the milk to the calf, wetting the hand in it and putting it to the calf's mouth. The calf will get the taste of the milk, and while sucking your fingers bring your hand down into the milk. Then gently withdraw your fingers when up will come the calf's head. Repeat the operation. Keep cool and good-natured. As soon as the calf's nose gets into the milk withdraw your fingers from its mouth, but keep your hand against its nose. Keep good-natured. Don't bother too long the first time. A few hours after try it again. As soon as the calf's nose gets into the milk slip your fingers out of the mouth but let them rest against the nose. Keep good-natured. Any extravagant expressions are completely lost on our young friend at this early stage in its history. Never force its head down into the pail. By following the above plan, the fourth feed, at the farthest, has always found my calves able to get the milk out of the pail without anything more than a "start" on my part. But I have always kept good-natured when teaching young calves to drink.—Farm, Field and Stockman.

People who "went South for the winter" this year have found it.

Got the Job.

The other morning a boy about fourteen years of age knocked at the door of a house on Brush street, and asked the woman if she didn't want the snow cleaned off the walk.

'How much?' she cautiously inquired.

'Thirty cents.'

'I won't pay it. If you want to do the work for ten cents you can go ahead.'

He leaned on the handle of his snow shovel and looked thoughtful, and she finally queried:

'Well, what do you say?'

'It's just as that woman around the corner told me,' he replied. 'I shoveled off her snow and she gave me fifty cents. I told her I was coming to you, and she said——'

'I don't know her. What business is it to her.'

'Yes, but——'

'What did she say?'

'She said I'd get left. She said that any woman who wore a plush sacque and passed it off for a three hundred-dollar sealskin would be mean enough to go out nights and shovel her own snow.'

'Boy!' whispered the woman as she turned white clear around her neck. 'I want you to clean off the snow. When you are through I'll give you a silver dollar, and I want you to go around and tell that woman that any one who buys and wears dollar store jewelry and fourteen-shilling shoes hasn't got sense enough to fall off a bob-tailed car!'—Detroit Free Press.

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has Slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and pureness. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.

TO THE FARMERS
— OF —
GENTRE COUNTY.

We do not sell Bohemian Oats or greased lightning rods, or humbug those who deal with us, nor do we represent that a fortune can be secured in a day, week or year by using articles we sell. We do represent:

"He that by the plow would thrive,
Himself must either hold or drive."

We propose to keep up with the progresss of improvement; therefore, we have secured the Roland Chilled Plow, which we guarantee to be the best plow now offered to the farming community, and is sold at a low price.

We sell Spike and Spring Teeth Harrows.

After preparing the ground you want seed. It is a conceded fact that the best seed is always the cheapest. The most of buyers consider the price, and pay little regard to the quality. We are the only dealers in Centre county who make choice farm and garden seeds a specialty.

We sell 64 pounds of Cloverseed and 45 pounds of Timothy seed for a bushel, and are governed by the following rules in buying and selling:

Choice—To be bright in color, dry, sound, plump, well cleaned, and free from foreign seed.

Prime—To be dry, sound, reasonably clean and only slightly mixed with weed or foreign seed.

Good—To be merchantable clover or timothy seed, but too badly mixed with dirt, brown weed or foreign seed or not good enough for prime seed.

Rejected—To include all seed damp or damaged, very dirty, or so badly mixed with weed or foreign seed as to render it unmerchantable.

Poor seed always shows to the best advantage during cloudy days. Choose your seed when you can examine it by sunshine. We have a well selected stock of both farm and garden seeds, which we invite farmers to examine before buying.

We have adopted the Auburn Farm Wagon, which is supplied with steel skeins or steel axles, which we will warrant to be one of the best wagons made.

We invite farmers to call in and examine our stock. Store opp. the Bush House.

EVERYBODY

seems to be advertising bargains. Now it seems to us that all sensible people consulting their interests, will patronize a firm keeping a full and complete line of goods. Such a firm is the place to secure bargains in the truest sense of the word. By a bargain, we mean good goods for the lowest amount of money, and variety of goods in grades, and at prices to meet the wants of all. We take up no room to name the firms and makers of our best line of goods, but will simply say that we allow none of the best makers to pass us. If you will only call you will be convinced of this fact. Regardless of the hardness of the times our men are hard at work in our custom department. People seem to know that

*for style, durability and comfort, is the best money can buy. Remember making and selling good Boots and Shoes is our only business. Years of experience have perfected us in this. You will find we are partial to good goods. We like to sell the best goods, for we then know the buyer gets the worth of his money. A call at our establishment will conv
